Behind the scenes

Introduction

This part of the publication contains results from the half Senate and House of Representatives elections held on 9 October 2004. Further results are available from the AEC website or by phoning 13 23 26.

CANDIDATES AND POLITICAL PARTIES

In this publication the names of candidates appear in the same form and order as on the ballot paper. The party affiliation of each candidate is indicated by the political party code. A list of the codes used for each party is shown on page 79. A small number of candidates had no party affiliation listed on the ballot paper. These are candidates who were not endorsed by a political party registered with the Australian Electoral Commission and who also did not request to be identified as 'Independent'.

In the Senate, most candidates are 'grouped' on the ballot paper. Each group of candidates appears on the ballot paper in a unique column and is identified by a single letter with the group in the left-hand column on the ballot paper being group 'A', the second left-hand column being group 'B', and so on. Groups may be made up of candidates endorsed by a registered political party. Some groups include candidates who have been endorsed by more than one political party; for example the Liberal and National Parties had a 'joint ticket' in NSW and VIC. A group may also be made up of candidates who have not been endorsed by a registered political party and, therefore, no party affiliation is shown on the ballot paper.

Incumbent Senators can appear on the ballot paper in the same manner as grouped candidates, that is in a column on their own. With this exception, only grouped candidates can appear in separate columns. Each group, whether endorsed by a registered party or not, or an incumbent Senator, is entitled to have a box 'above the line' on the ballot paper as long as they lodge a group voting ticket within 24 hours of the public declaration of nominations.

Apart from incumbent Senators, all candidates who are not grouped are included in one or more columns on the right hand side of the ballot paper. Ungrouped candidates can have a registered party affiliation shown next to their names, or the word 'Independent', or no affiliation may be shown.

ENROLMENT

The enrolment figures shown in this part of the publication represent the number of electors eligible to vote on election day, 9 October 2004. These figures comprise enrolment at the close of rolls on 7 September 2004 with subsequent amendments such as the death of an elector prior to election day, a provisionally enrolled elector turning 18 by election day, or the reinstatement of an eligible elector previously removed from the roll.

TYPES OF VOTES

There are five methods of casting a vote:

Ordinary Vote—a vote cast at a polling place in the elector's enrolled division on election day.

Absent Vote—a vote cast by an elector out of their enrolled division but still within their home State or Territory on election day.

Pre-Poll or Postal Vote—a vote cast before election day at a pre-poll voting centre or by post. These votes can be cast by electors who will not be within their home State or Territory on election day, are seriously ill, infirm, unable to leave work, or for religious reasons are unable to attend a polling place on election day.

Provisional Vote—a vote cast in circumstances where an elector's name cannot be found on the roll but the elector claims the right to vote; or the name has already been marked off the roll but the elector claims to have not voted before in the election. The vote cannot be counted until a careful check of records and entitlements has been made.

MOBILE POLLING

Electors in many hospitals and similar institutions, some prisons, and in remote areas, can cast their vote when visited by a mobile polling team. Mobile polling is carried out in the 12 days leading up to and including election day.

COUNTING THE VOTES FOR THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

House of Representatives elections are conducted on the basis of single-member constituencies. To be elected, a candidate must obtain an absolute majority (that is, 50% plus 1 vote) of the formal votes cast for the electoral division that they are contesting. First, all of the number '1' votes are counted for each candidate. If a candidate gets more than half the total first preference votes, that candidate will be elected; if, however, no candidate has more than half of the votes, the candidate with the fewest votes is excluded. This candidate's votes are then transferred to the remaining candidates according to the second preference shown on the ballot papers. If still no candidate has more than half the votes, the candidate who now has the fewest votes is excluded and the votes are transferred according to the next preference shown for a candidate who has not been excluded. This process continues until one candidate has more than half the total votes cast and is declared elected.

A distribution of preferences takes place in every division, even where a candidate already has an absolute majority of first preference votes. The result of this full distribution of preferences is used to calculate the two-party-preferred statistics for divisions that have the ALP and Coalition as the final two candidates. In divisions that do not have the ALP and Coalition as the final two candidates, a Scrutiny for Information is conducted to determine the two-party-preferred result. A Scrutiny for Information, in such cases, is a notional distribution of preferences to find the result of preference flows to the ALP and Coalition candidates.

TWO-PARTY-PREFERRED (TPP) FIGURES

TPP figures indicate results where preferences have been distributed to the major sides of politics, the ALP and the Coalition. Two-Candidate-Preferred (TCP) figures show where preferences have been distributed to the final two candidates. In most cases, the TPP and TCP figures are the same because the final two candidates are the ALP and Coalition. However, in an independently held seat or where the final two candidates in the election are not the ALP and the Coalition, the TPP differs from the TCP. A notional distribution of preferences to establish the TPP result was conducted during the 2004 election for the following divisions; Calare (NSW), New England (NSW), Kennedy (QLD) and Mayo (SA).

COUNTING THE VOTES FOR THE SENATE

The Senate count is more complicated than a count for the House of Representatives. Counting of first preferences begins on election night but the full count cannot be completed until several weeks after the election.

WORKING OUT THE QUOTA

To be elected to the Senate, a candidate needs to gain a quota of the formal votes. The quota is calculated by dividing the total number of formal ballot papers by one more than the number of Senators to be elected, and adding '1' to the result (ignoring any remainder). This is how the quota for New South Wales was calculated at the 2004 half Senate election:

$$\frac{3,974,565}{(6 + 1)} + 1 = 567,796$$

Therefore the quota, or number of votes required to be elected, in New South Wales at the 2004 election was 567,796.

COUNTING THE FIRST PREFERENCE VOTES

This is done as for a House of Representatives election; all of the number '1' votes are counted for each candidate. Candidates who receive a quota, or more, of these first preference votes are elected immediately.

TRANSFERRING THE SURPLUS

Any surplus votes these elected candidates receive (ie votes in excess of the quota they needed) are transferred to the candidates who were the second choice of voters. Because it is not possible to distinguish between which votes actually elected the candidate and which votes are surplus, all the elected candidate's ballot papers are transferred at a reduced value. The first candidate has already 'used up' some of the value of these votes in being elected.

For example:

Candidate A gains 1,000,000 votes. If the required quota was 500,000 the surplus would be 500,000. The transfer value therefore would be:

$$\frac{500,000}{1,000,000} = 0.5$$

Candidate A's ballot papers (1,000,000) are then re-examined in order to determine the number of votes for second choice candidates. If Candidate A's ballot papers gave 900,000 second preferences to Candidate B he would receive $900,000 \times 0.5 = 450,000$ votes which are added to the votes he received in count one. If Candidate B is then over the quota then he is elected and his surplus votes transferred in the same way.

As a result of this process of transferring surplus votes, other candidates may be elected. If, however, all surplus votes from elected candidates are transferred and there are still some unfilled positions, another stage of the count begins.

EXCLUSION OF UNSUCCESSFUL CANDIDATES

Starting with the candidate who has the least number of votes, unelected candidates are now excluded from the count and their votes are distributed to the remaining candidates to whom the voters have given their preferences. If any of the remaining candidates obtains a quota through this process of distribution, he or she is elected. Their surplus (if any) is transferred before any other candidates are excluded.

The above process continues until all Senate positions are filled.

Summary tables showing the result of the Senate count for each State and Territory are published in this part of the publication commencing on page 124.

1. The votes column shows:
 - a) first preference votes obtained by each party, independents and non-affiliated candidates;
 - b) the total formal and informal votes;
 - c) the total votes cast.
2. The percentage column shows:
 - a) the first preference votes obtained by each party expressed as a percentage of the total formal votes;
 - b) the total formal and informal votes expressed as a percentage of the total votes cast.
3. The total votes cast expressed as a percentage of enrolment for the State, Territory or the nation—also known as ‘turnout’.
4. The swing column shows a comparison between the result obtained in the current event with that obtained in the previous election. Therefore, a swing of -2.26% shown for the ALP means a 2.26% swing away from the ALP compared to the previous election.
5. The Two Party Preferred (TPP) part of the table shows:
 - a) the TPP votes obtained by each party;
 - b) the percentage of the TPP each party obtained;
 - c) the swing in TPP compared to the previous election.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES—TWO PARTY PREFERRED STATISTICS (PAGES 99 TO 105)

Two Party Preferred (TPP) statistics are calculated, by convention, between the Australian Labor Party (ALP) and the Coalition (Liberal Party/National Party).

The TPP statistics are shown in several formats:

- the tables on pages 99–103 show the number of votes and percentage of total votes received by the ALP and the Coalition for each division, State, Territory and the nation. The swing shown is expressed as a percentage swing to the Coalition therefore a swing of -1.50% is a swing of 1.50% away from the Coalition and towards the ALP;
- the table on pages 104–105 shows the percentage TPP for each division listed in descending order of TPP grouped under ALP and Liberal/National Coalition;
- the tables on pages 106–107 show the percentage TPP swing to the Coalition listing all divisions by State and Territory;
- the table on pages 108–109 shows the percentage TPP swing to the Coalition for each division listed in descending order of swing.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES—TURNOUT (PAGES 110 TO 113)

These tables show the turnout percentage and swing:

- by State, Territory and the nation;
- for all divisions in a State or Territory;
- by descending order of percentage turnout for all divisions nationally.

PLEASE NOTE: A positive swing means the turnout has increased since the previous election, whilst a negative swing indicates that the turnout has decreased since the previous election.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES—INFORMALITY STATISTICS (PAGES 114 TO 117)

These tables show informality statistics:

- by State, Territory and the nation;
- for all divisions in a State or Territory;
- by ascending order of percentage informality for all divisions nationally.

SENATE—FIRST PREFERENCE VOTES BY GROUP (PAGES 120 TO 122)
